

Medical Laboratory Technicians

Scientists: bachelor, master, doctoral levels

The COVID-19 Laboratory Associate Program, sponsored by APHL and CDC, provides experience in laboratory-related aspects of the COVID-19 pandemic response. Associates provide workforce capacity to the public health laboratory community in its response efforts. In turn, associates develop skills to prepare for careers in public health laboratory science.

The program is a temporary, full-time working appointment for bachelor-, master- and doctoral-level scientists; Medical Laboratory Technicians and Scientists are also strongly encouraged to apply. Associates are placed in US local, state, and territorial public health laboratories to assist with the COVID-19 pandemic response.
